Islay Malts...

The strongest-smelling and strongest-tasting whiskies. They tend to be medium-bodied, dry and phenolic (smoky or medicinal). Much of the Isle of Islay is peat, and this taints the water. Some distilleries avoid this by using spring water, some use heavily peated malt to reinforce this.

Highland Malts...

The only characteristic that unites most Highland malts is the dry finish as the Highland malts vary considerably, from spicy and nutty in the north to peaty or phenolic characteristics in the West. South and Central Highland malts tend towards a sweetness and fragrance where as the Eastern Highland malts are malty with citric and toffee notes.
